

How to make my android look like ios

Continue

With all the iPhone and iOS coverage recently, you might be experiencing a little iPhone envy. Sure, your Android phone already has many iOS 5 functions, but for some reason, the features just seem sexier on the iPhone. To help you during this difficult time, we found a free app that makes your Android phone look and feel exactly like an iPhone. Actually, it's so believable, you might even forget about your iOS envy. Espier Launcher replaces your default Android home screens with an iPhone-style interface. Impressively enough, Espier even functions like an iPhone--swipe left to search your phone, create folders by dragging app icons over each other, swipe up to reveal the multitasking toolbar, and view notification counts on messages and missed calls. You'll also find some things iOS lacks. For example, swipe up to reveal the multitasking bar, then swipe right to access helpful shortcuts to Wi-Fi, rotation lock, network settings, brightness, and volume. Here are some tips for navigating Espier Launcher: If you have an older Android phone, the interface might be a little laggy, but can be improved by tapping the menu button, Preferences, and unchecking animation effects. To uninstall an app from the home screen, tap an hold an app icon, and hit the X. To rearrange apps, tap and hold any app and drag the icons to the desired location. Close running apps by swiping up from the bottom of the screen, long-press an icon, and tap the minus sign on any apps you want to shut down. To make Espier Launcher your default interface, tap the home button, check the box next to "use by default for this action," and tap Espier Launcher. Let's be honest--it's probably only a matter of time before Espier disappears from the Android Market. It's a blatant rip-off of Apple's mobile operating system, so don't expect it to stick around. Grab it now so you can enjoy the interface, even for just a while. (Via AddictiveTips) How to make Android to iOS is a question which most of the users ask. If you want your Android phone to look more like an iPhone, a launcher is a great place to start. Download a launcher app from the Google Play Store that offers an iOS-style interface.[1] Some popular options include: Nova Launcher, which allows you to not only set the look of your icons, app drawer, and lock screen, but also lets you specify the gestures and shortcuts you use to make your phone run more like an iPhone. Apex Launcher, which includes options to customize your icons for a more iOS-style look. Go Launcher EX, which makes it easy to install a variety of iOS-style themes for your Android phone. Advertisement Use icon packs or themes together with your launcher. Once you've installed a custom launcher, you can download themes and icon packs to further customize the look of your Android phone.[2] Search the Google Play Store for iOS icon packs or themes in your preferred style. You can even download themes and icons that are designed to imitate a specific iPhone operating system, such as iOS 13, 14, or 15. Follow the instructions in your launcher app to apply the icons, theme, or skin to your phone. Most of these icon packs won't come with the launcher that's built into your phone. You'll need a third-party launcher app, such as Apex Launcher or Nova Launcher. Using the right apps creates a more authentic iPhone experience. Custom icons can make your phone look more like an iPhone on the surface, but the apps themselves will still look and feel like Android apps. Luckily, there are lots of third-party options out there that imitate the Apple versions. For example, consider downloading: AirMessage, an app that allows you to use iMessage on an Android device. You can also try other feature-rich messaging apps like Textra or Google Chat. Music players that emulate the Apple Music app, like iMusic or Music Player-Apple Music MP3. You can also install the official Apple Music app on Android devices running Android 5 or later.[3] Utility apps like iCalendar and iCalculator that imitate the look of the iOS versions. Advertisement Try an iOS-style lock screen and notification app. These apps can make your Android look like an iPhone even when you're not actively using it. Install an app such as Lock Screen & Notification iOS 15, iLock, or iNoty & Lockscreen. These apps not only mimic the look of an iOS lock screen, but will also change the way your notifications look to match. Some of these apps will also allow you to set iOS-style passcodes for extra security. You may need to adjust some of your phone's settings in order for the custom lock screen to function correctly. For instance, you will need to give the app permission to access your camera so that you can take photos directly from the lock screen. These apps install a custom swipe-down settings menu. If your device runs on Android 12 or later, you should already have a swipe-down Quick Settings menu where you can easily access basic data, account, and device settings.[4] However, if you want your Quick Settings menu to look more like the iOS Control Center, you can do that with a third-party app. Try downloading an app like Control Center iOS or iCenter iOS15. Advertisement An emulator will let you run iOS-only apps from your Android. If you want to get the full iOS experience on your Android device, an emulator is a good option. These apps allow you to run software that wouldn't normally be compatible with your device. Since most emulators are not available through the Google Play store, you'll need to get one from a third-party app store or website.[5] Keep in mind that emulators require a lot of RAM to run, so you'll probably need a phone that has at least 1-2 GB available. Some popular iOS emulators include iEMU, CIDER, and Appetize.
