The average ACT score for American students is 20.6. The average 50% of students score between 16 and 25. The following chart breaks down the national average by section: English Math Reading Science 19.2 20.2 21.2 20.6 However, when you are thinking about college admissions, the national average is not important: what matters is the average score of the students you are comparing. If you are a high performing student who applies to very selective schools you will need a score much higher than the national average. If, on the other hand, it is applying to some state schools, a 20 is a totally acceptable score. Seriously, the national average doesn't matter If you're worried about your ACT scores, it's probably because you want to use them to apply them to college. But the national average includes every student who takes the ATC (a total of 52% of students who graduated in 2019), including many who do not intend to go to college but are required to take the test as part of a state-wide assessment program. When you are applying for college or scholarship you are not competing against all these students, you are only competing against other students who are applying for that school or scholarship. The key is to have an average or higher score compared to the students you are competing against âthe national average is thus quite meaningless for your purposes. Let's talk about some numbers that might be more useful in terms of setting a goal for you. How to compare yourself with your peers If you're still curious about how you compare other students in general, you might want to check how your ACT scores compare with those of other students like you, i.e. those with similar grades and backgrounds. In general, the easiest way to figure out where you fall into this range is to find out your average ACT score at your high school. If you are a high-achieving student looking at competitive colleges, you may also want to consider how to stack with other honorable students. Keep in mind, though, that when it comes to college applications, these numbers are only marginally more significant than the national average. Average ACT score for your high school If you want to know the average ACT score at your high school, just Google [your school] ACT scores. This approach will be most effective if you attend a public school in a state with mandated ACT test, although many private schools list these scores on their websites. If the SAT is generally more common where you live, you can try looking for the average SAT score and then convert it to an ACT score. Average ACT score for Honor students with high GPAs also tend to have high ACT scores. For students in the first category, the average ACT score is 27. For those at the top 1/10, it's 30. These numbers should not However, since as we will go below, what is really important is how we compare itother students applying for your same school. The Key Number: The Average ACT Score for Your Ideal College As I explained above, the value of an ACT score lies in the fact that it can enter the school of your dreams, not in the way it compares with other students' scores. Therefore, you will need to search for the average ACT scores for students admitted to the schools you want to apply in order to determine your target score. Most schools list a range of ACT scores (25 Â°-75 Â° percentile) rather than a single number. You can search for this information on Google "[name of university] ACT Scores" or "[name of university] ACT Prepscholar Scores".Then use this worksheet to calculate your exact target score based on all the schools you are interested in. Keep in mind that there is a wide range of scores that colleges expect: the most selective Schools generally have average ACT scores between 32 and 35 years old. Slightly selective schools have mean ACT scores between the ages of 20 and 20. You don't have to panic because you don't have a 36. What's next? Preparing for the ACT exam goes beyond simply reviewing grammar rules and trigonometry. Doing well requires pace and endurance so you can stay focused for hours of testing. How long does the ACT test last? And how many questions do you have to answer per minute? Learn the pros and cons of ACT time so you know how to maximize your time on ACT.Length of ACT Test The ACT test is 2 hours 55 minutes (or 175 minutes), but 3 hours 35 minutes (215 minutes) if you take the ACT Plus writing. Each section is divided into a single piece and lasts from thirty to sixty minutes.Â Topic Â Total questions Â Time (in minutes) English 75 45 Mathematics 60 60 Reading 40 35 Science 40 35 Writing (optional) 1 essay 40 You will receive a 10-minute break after the math section and a 5-minute break after the multiple-choice sections if you are taking the ACT Plus Writing. Surely use that time to stretch out, drink some water, and have a snack, since that Be tested for more than a time before and after the pause. Time pressure on the ACT despite the fact that the ACT is almost three hours (or three hours and a half hours if you take Act Plus Writing), time pressure can be intense. This table shows the time required to respond to each application on the ATT. Of course, in practice, the rhythm varier will depending on the type of question and difficulty. But this gives you an idea of how much you will have to achieve during every minute of the ACT. Â Object area Â approximate time for Italian demand 36 seconds Mathematics 1 minute Reading 52 seconds Science 52 seconds The sections of the ACT are given in single pieces. This means that developing your resistance and concentration will be the key to doing well on the ACT. You could be the best mathematician in the world, but this means nothing on the ACT, unless you fail to work quickly and keep your energies for the whole time of mathematical problems. Preparation for each section we talk about how to refine your time management capabilities in each of the four sections. English The English theme area will seem the fastest since you will need to answer 75 questions in just 45 minutes. Especially if it is a challenging topic for you, take time to practice not only the content but also the rhythm of this section. To improve your speed, it starts giving you unlimited time on the English sections. Then narrow the time at 60 minutes. At the end, reduce it to 45 minutes. This will help you build precision and speed, as well as being at ease with the ActÂ ÂS format. MATH The ACT math section has 60 questions in 60 minutes. This is beautiful because it will be easy to keep track of the rhythm «Try to do an average of a minute question. Similar to the English section, if this speed is difficult for you, it starts giving you unlimited time to get used to the kind of mathematics questions that asks you the ACT, then reduce it to 75 minutes, and finally to 60. The goal is " To increase speed without sacrificing accuracy. Reading and science even if it tests very different thematic areas, the action and science sections of ActÂ Â are formatted very similarly. Both sections deal with the disaggregation of information, whether it is a graph, a search report or a longer passage. While studied, develop a system. Solve the passage or chart first and then read the questions, or read the questions first and then give a look at the information? Both systems can work equally well, so try both and understand which one works best for you. Once the system has chosen, practice so you can run it without problems. The goal is to be able to break away passages and data very quickly without going so fast to commit errors. Tackle the best way to prepare Rhythm of ActÂ Â and to increase resistance to testing, is to do complete and strictly programmed tests. If you can, take them on Saturday morning, so you can prepare for your energy level during this time of day. Withdrawal The tests will help you get used to the format and stimulation of the law, especially in the English section you have about 36 seconds per question. When you are taking practice tests, simulates the effective test conditions as much as possible. Bubble in your answers to take into account the slight time that will take. Finally, if you are taking the most writing act, practice writing your essay after making all the multiple choice sections. Yes, it is definitely difficult to write an essay after almost three hours of multiple choice, but what you will need to do on the day test. Practicing in advance will give you the best chance to concentrate and overcome fatigue on the day of the act. Mark the calendar Â Â ~ "Saturday is for the practice tests! Don't sleep well) You will be two hours in the test, and you could feel an energy accident. What are you doing? Here are quick tips: eating a nutritious breakfast that is not too fat or sweet. Complex carbohydrates can give you lasting energy. Always take advantage PAUSE. Use the bathroom even if you don't feel completely as you have, since you don't want to have to use the bathroom in the middle of the test. Bring a snack and water so you can re-integrate your energy and thirst without wandering Through school rooms. What is the next? Looking for practice tests of the law?
